- ▶ Key words: input, process, storage and output.

Input–collection of raw data for processing.

Process– conversion, manipulation and analysis of raw data to make it meaningful.

Storage–kept for future use(consolidate data)

Output–processed information and distribution

The Management Information System supports all operational processes of the programme, it is a web oriented design.

The system is designed for the execution at two levels:

- 1) The CPU that controls the information system at the central level .
- 2) The use of software applications at the regional level (DCOs) is planned and will be implemented once the internet links are established and capacity of staff enhanced.
